AIA365.com Video Streaming Apology

Baseball, Softball & Boys Volleyball

PHOENIX, AZ (May 17, 2012) – The AIA would like to apologize to its viewers for the difficulties experienced with the AIA365.com platform over the weekend and into this current week. The intent was to stream all team championships live in baseball, softball and boys volleyball, that took place on May 12, 14 and 15, 2012.

At Rose Mofford Softball Complex, no internet connection was available; therefore, the D-III and D-IV softball championships were to be made available on-demand on May 13 at Noon. All other championships were streamed live.

The failure to make all championships available on-demand was caused by an error with the upgrade to add support for iOS (iPad and iPhone) devices. While the live streams were available, the delivery of on-demand streams was delayed.

The AIA has been informed by the production company that the Div-III baseball game will be available by the end of the day today, with the remaining baseball/softball games available by tomorrow morning.

On behalf of the AIA365.com staff, we thank you for your continued support and viewership.
